-ED HIGGINS

Werts - Hey, Bri, what's the scoop on this new guy? He must be 6'7". 'Bet he's a great basketball shot.

Brian - No way! He couldn't do a layup on the cub court if his life depended on it. Besides, he's always too busy. You'll never see him over there. Keep guessing.

W - OK. Who brought him up here, anyhow?

B - George did, I guess.

W - Well, I'll try not to hold that against him. What's he supposed to do around here, anyhow?

B - Well, he definitely couldn't be in the kitchen. His tastes in food are far too dry.

W - Well, how about Swim Point?

B - It's true that he does the duke in some pretty far-out places, but he doesn't have his Senior Lifesaving.

W - Is he in maintenance? He's always driving the camp vehicles around.

B - They wouldn't want him in maintenance! He has equipment all over the place.

W - Boathouse?

B - You're getting close. It's true that he takes out a lot of canoes, but no. He actually hates those red babies.

W - Alright, then, does he work in the A-Hut?
---Oh yeah, you told me about the basketball.

B - Besides, he has a rough time with things like scheduling.

W - OK, does he have anything to do with the Infirmary?

B - Not on your life - or anyone else's! He doesn't even know what's in your basic first aid kit.

W - What's left? Leadership training?

B - Ha! He parties too much. He tells other people to do the leading, if you get right down to it.

W - Wait a minute - let me think. I've got it! Hike Hut!

W and B - The 1975 Last Whistle is dedicated to ...

W - A guy who is very "p".

B - Yeah - about 2 min., 11 sec. worth.

W - A pioneer of mountaintop camping, even in the worst of conditions.

B - A man who was singularly important in the upsurge in interest that camping has enjoyed at Dudley.

W - an individual who continually and creatively changed the once ritualized outdoor program.

B - An individual who adopted Dudley the day he arrived, even in his old age.

W - A walking example of the Dudley Spirit.

B - Someone we have all found it worthwhile to know.

W - Someone we all like to call a friend.

B - A "Complete Walker."

W - Otherwise known as "Captain Skylight."

W and B - Ed Higgins.
